

You're "First-In"

Rescue Series

Company Level Rope Rescue
Maximizing Your Effectiveness With Minimal Resources

First-in companies may find themselves faced with making critical decisions arriving on the scene of various rope based incidents. This course will provide students with a solid fundamental knowledge of basic rope rescue equipment along with techniques to safely work through this type of "risk vs. benefit" analysis. Students will train focusing on worse case scenarios providing a systematic approach to committing operationally and focusing on safe yet "RAPID ACCESS". Participants will utilize basic equipment found on many responding apparatus. This course will assist agencies, who depend on organized teams to mitigate rope rescue incidents, by providing a working knowledge of "REACH & TREAT" capabilities, independent of an organized technical rescue team. During this one day course, students will be operating in the outdoor environment and should be prepared for any given weather conditions. Reference material, including detailed equipment inventories commonly found on responding apparatus, will be given.
